We park at Tezzi Alti, coming up from Gandellino.

At the start, we follow the signs on the indicator pole, of CAI path 309.

We walk along this stretch on a surface of dirt and grass.

Now the ground is made of compacted stones.

On the wall of a structure, the CAI 309 path flag appears.

On the left are information signs illustrating the beauty of the place.

To our right we admire the panorama of the valley, rich in greenery, and in the distance we hear the sound of the water of the stream.

We continue into the forest where the path flattens out slightly, under very tall trees.

We pass a well-preserved and well-kept building on our right.

To our left is a cabin.

To our left we hear the sound of the spring that welcomes us.

On our left we pass a small chapel, on the opposite side of the path there are tall trees and the valley floor.

At the fork, we continue to the right on an easy stretch of path.

We continue through the forest on a level stretch.

A wooden sculpture appears on our left, positioned on the spot to be appreciated by hikers.

We reach on the left an area equipped for resting.

On the right of the clearing is a wooden crucifix with benches.

Near the rest area we find a spring water fountain.

In front of us is a ford with little water, which we easily cross. Beyond the ford we cross a path coming from the Gromo clearing, we turn left and walk uphill.

On our right we see a small bridge.

We follow the signposts and continue on our way.

After crossing the stream, we walk left to reach our destination on the meadow where we stop.

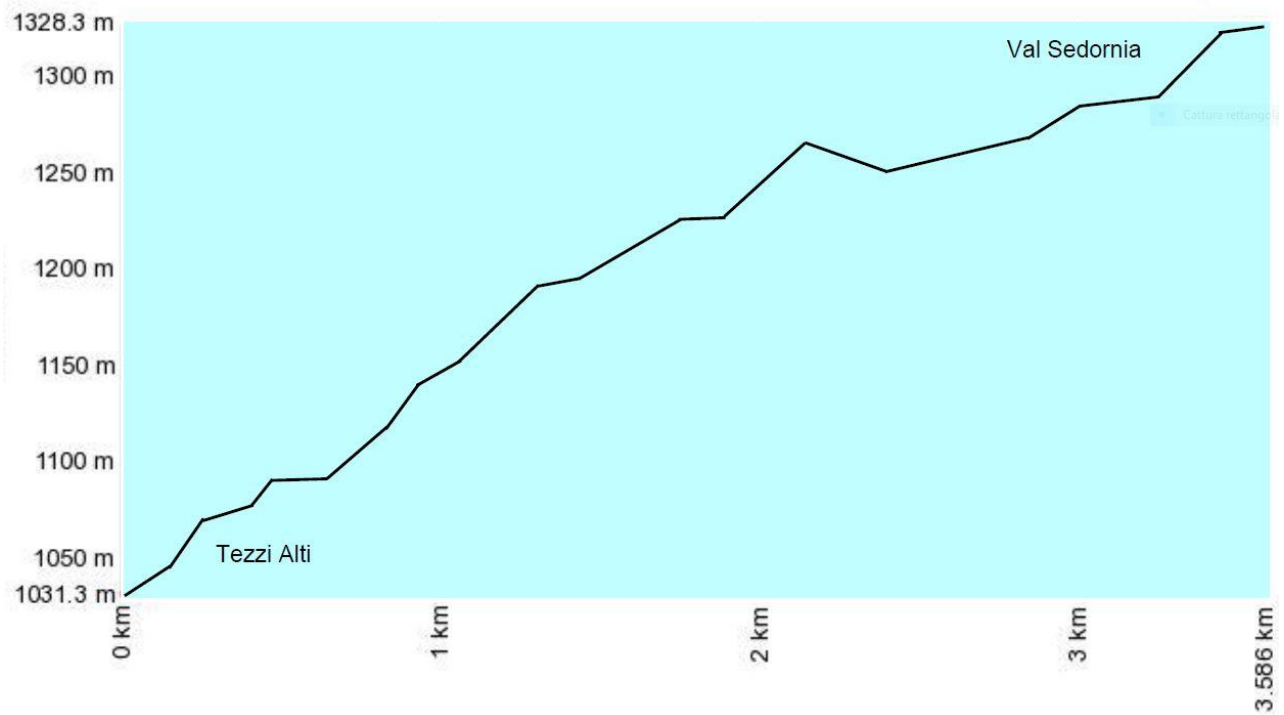

We reach our destination on the meadow and stop.

On our return, we try to use the small bridge, near the ford, and continue our descent, retracing the path from where we started.
